

Complete Sentence Train

We should always write in complete sentences because they give our readers our complete thoughts.

Every complete sentence is like a train.

The engine is the capital letter at the beginning of the sentence.

The two train cars are the subject...

and predicate.

The caboose is the end punctuation. (●)

Your sentence is He likes cats.

If you remember to make every sentence like a train, your writing will improve.

Couplers link the train together - common sense.
